The Homeopathic Pharmacopoeia Convention of the United States defines nosodes as "homeopathic attenuations of: pathological organs or tissues; causative agents such as bacteria, fungi, ova, parasites, virus particles, and yeast; disease products; excretions or secretions." Isopathic remedies share a close relationship with nosodes, however, they emphasize substances taken and potentized from the patient's surround such as environmental toxins, metals, imponderables, etc. Detoxifiers presented in this section are a combination of classical homeopathic preparations in a 60 mL cobalt blue bottle (protects the remedy) which may include nosodes, isodes, sarcodes and potentized botanicals all designed to differentiate, constellate and amplify the keynote focus of the remedy. All ingredients are made from mother tinctures, hand diluted as per Hahnemann and hand succussed. Many are in multiple potencies known as homaccords to provide for the processes and patterns of homeopathic ascendancy. Potentized Mesenchyme 6X, 9X, 6C and ATP 5X are included to assist in homeopathic ECM drainage and homeopathic empowerment.

Viruses are not complete cells that can function on their own. They depend on other organisms for their metabolic functions as they cannot convert carbohydrates, proteins or fats into energy as do other living cells. Viruses cannot reproduce unless they get inside a living cell. Most viruses consist only of tiny particles of nucleic acid (the material that makes up genes) surrounded by a coat of protein. Some have an outer envelope as well.

For example, there are many different subtypes of Influenza or "flu" viruses. The subtypes differ based upon certain proteins on the surface of the virus (the hemagglutinin or "HA" protein and the neuraminidase or the "NA" protein). viruses appear (or "emerge") as a result of a process called "antigenic shift," which causes an abrupt or sudden, major change in influenza A viruses. These changes are caused by new combinations of the HA and/or NA proteins on the surface of the virus. This change results in a new influenza A virus subtype. The appearance of a new influenza A virus subtype is the first step toward a pandemic, but the new virus subtype also must spread easily from person to person to cause a pandemic. Once a new pandemic influenza virus emerges and spreads, it normally becomes established among people and moves around or "circulates" for many years as seasonal epidemics of influenza. H1N1 is the current designation for the "Swine Flu" 2009 pandemic .

There are thousands of viruses and in humans they cause a wide range of disease. For instance, rhinoviruses cause colds, influenza viruses cause flu, adenoviruses cause various respiratory problems and rotaviruses cause gastroenteritis. Polioviruses can make their way to the spinal cord and cause paralysis, while coxsackie viruses and echoviruses sometimes infect the heart or the membranes surrounding the spinal cord, thyroid or lungs.

Herpes viruses cause cold sores, chickenpox and sexually transmitted, genital herpes. Other viruses may cause a variety of conditions from measles and mumps to potentially Cancers, etc.

After entering the cell, the virus begins making identical viruses from the host cell's protein. These new viruses may make their way back out through the host cell's membrane, sometimes destroying the cell and then attacking new host cells. This process continues until the body develops enough antibodies and other defences to defeat the viral invaders.

Sometimes the virus seems to trigger "programmed cell death" or apoptosis (ap-op-TO-sis) that kills the cell.

A viral illness may not be caused by the virus itself, but by the body's reaction to it. The immune system may kill cells in order to get rid of the virus that is inside them. This can cause serious illness if the cells being killed are core to the body's functioning, like those in the lungs or central nervous system, or if the cells cannot reproduce quickly enough to replace the ones being destroyed.

As is apparent, the ECM and Intra-Cellular Matrices require significant decongestion and clarification as well as substantial nutritional uptake increase to restore the cellular communication pathways (RCCP). Also, attention should be paid towards stabilizing adrenal function particularly cortisol levels.

Viru-Tox is an especially relevant homeopathic remedy for these days and times, complete with sarcodes, nosodes, low potentized botanicals for drainage and detox.
